

“Aiming to be students who can contribute to the community” Experiencing the real emergency at the drill.

The revision of curriculum guidelines emphasizes the importance of “learning independently” . I think this proactivity is sustained by “practical experience” and “to actually touch and feel” things. Adults can picture the scene from reading the sentence, or they can compensate from their past experiences if it not written in words. Though this is not the case for children. It is extremely important for them to actually touch and feel the real world to learn.

Therefore, it was truly a valuable time to experience this town lead evacuation drill, “student disaster prevention training program” . Original prefectural drill was cancelled, but instead it was held at our junior high school. With the help of The Air Self-Defense Force and the Japan Coast Guard plus 17 other organizations, students had a lot of hands-on experiences which we could never have had at school. Also, our upper graders had a task to be the staff who were in charge of evacuee reception training and cooking training. They must have had the chance to be aware that they are part of the community. It was a great opportunity for our students to hear the staff’ s actual rescue stories and to touch the real tools. Also, it gave them a moment to think about what helping people really means and what being of use to others. We would appreciate if you talk about “our home disaster prevention and reduction” at home.

From now on, we would like to create opportunities where children can “touch the real” things. Furthermore, our goal is to foster “the ability to see rather than listen, to think and act rather than to see and the ability to survive in society” .

Lastly, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to all the organizations involved in preparing for this emergency drills which provided them an extremely precious experience.

Exciting sports day

The performance was like the slogan itself “Show your Anachu spirits! Pass the baton!” . All students showed their “teamwork” , “friendship” , “passion” and their “spirits” in every events. We believe that they expressed enough enthusiasms that could fight off Corona virus. We would like to thank all parents for cooperating with the admission restriction and also helping out with the cleanup after this event.

On September 17th, we had a campaign speech by candidates for student council. Our president, 5 executive committees, and 8 committee members were selected. Everyone is fired up !

Student council starts 2nd graders are the leaders !

I will make this school a “school with compassion and kindness” . Each person has its own way of thinking and their point of views. You should put yourself in other’ s shoes and listen carefully. We ought to accept everyone’ s difference as a character so that we can communicate with others kindly and make our school a better place. I would also like to make this school a place where everyone can think “I want to be here tomorrow!” There will be many events which will be held this semester, so with 2nd graders leadership, we would like to do our best to prepare and hold, for example our school festival, so that everyone can enjoy it.
